Calculate the percentage change in mass of the carrot in this solution.

7.34 %

Ok, let's learn it...

Step 1 / 3

To calculate the percentage change in mass, we can use this equation.

$$\% \text{ change in mass} = \frac{\text{change in mass}}{\text{start mass}} \times 100$$

Identify the change in mass and start mass from the table.

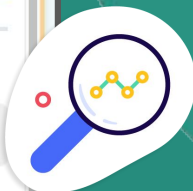

change in mass = g

start mass = g

Lunchtime Football on the field with goals

→ It is really important to us that you learn to take responsibility for your achievement. Consequently, moving forward you will need to do the following to be allowed on the field to play football in the goals.

◆ Have completed your Sparx Maths and Science homework (to 100%) for the week

→ Sparx? How will this work?

◆ On a Wednesday morning, a list of every student in the school that has completed their Sparx Maths and Science homeworks to 100% due that morning will be printed.

◆ If your name is not on the list, no field access (even if completed late)

◆ So if you want to play, complete your Sparx to 100% BEFORE the Weds 8am deadline!

But the real reward...
